

Alpine Tours

The Bluemlisalp Group offers many interesting alpine tours: for example, the normal route to the Bluemlisalphorn (northwest crest via Rothornsattel) as well as the popular North Wall, which attracts many mountaineers in spring and summer. The Morgenhorn – Weisse Frau – Bluemlisalphorn Traverse is one of the most beautiful routes in the Alps. The normal ascents to the Morgenhorn or the Weisse Frau are also very interesting tours. With fresh snow or glare ice, however, these tours can easily get very dangerous.

Bluemlisalphorn 3661m a.s.l. From the Bluemlisalp Hut to the Bluemlisalp glacier, pass „ufem Stock“ on the east side into the anticline between „ufem Stock“ and Weisse Frau. After ascending some more, you will reach the glacier corrie at the foot of the Bluemlisalphorn. The corrie must be crossed in the steep incline toward Rothornsattel (3179 m). From here follow the primary rocky (provided with cemented iron bars), and later ascend the snow covered northwest crest up to the peak. Ascent 4h / Descent 3h

Weisse Frau 3650m a.s.l. From the Bluemlisalp Hut to the Bluemlisalp glacier follow the anticline between „ufem Stock“ and Weisse Frau to the rocks above the incline (Schnapsfluh) and over the steep snow-covered, rocky crest (safety rods in the upper part) to the peak. Ascent 3h / Descent 2h 30min

Morgenhorn 3623m a.s.l. From the Bluemlisalp Hut follow the same route as Weisse Frau to the height of the anticline, then continue left toward Morgenhorn. After the flat above the ice inclination, go up the big ice crevice and then over the ridge (often glare ice) to the peak. Ascent 3h / Descent 2h 30min

Morgenhorn – Weisse Frau – Bluemlisalphorn Traverse From the Bluemlisalp Hut, go up to the Morgenhorn and follow the crest (some rocky parts, some névé) until you reach Weisse Frau. Now walk southward; some rocks need to be climbed down. Follow the snowy crest to the steepest part between Weisse Frau and Bluemlisalphorn. From here, climb up the crags, provided with safety poles. Continue on the snowy crest to the peak of the Bluemlisalphorn. Descend on the normal route via the Bluemlisalphorn northeast crest. Bluemlisalp Hut to Bluemlisalphorn: 7h

Wilde Frau 3260m a.s.l. From the Bluemlisalp Hut, follow the small path marked with cairns toward Wilde Frau up to the first rank; continue through a small couloir to the next ledge. After ascending 400m southward, you reach the next ledge where you will find the access to climb (marked with a blue-white dot). Climb vertically through the crack, then keep left first, finally turn right to the first stand (4+). Another short climb will bring you to the second stand (3). Staying on the short rope, continue to the right across the rock ledge in a big S up to the domed peak. Follow the path to the northwest, reaching the peak only 200 meters later (over some steps). Ascend 2h 30min / Descend 2h
